THE GHOST OF A COON.

Arr. by Wm. H. Tyers.

By Williams and Walker.

Andante moderato.

f Till ready.

1. I've heard of peo-ple talk 'bout Spir'tualism,..... I've heard of peo-ple
 2. I went home and thought of Par-son Johnson,..... He used to tell de peo-ple see-ing things at night, I've laugh'd a-bout it ev-er since I heard it, But not to fear de dead, "Dey can't harm you, but jes you watch de liv-ing!" And now I hope and trust that I think that they are right.

 wid that con - so - la - tion I start - ed off to bed.

I was strut - ting home dis morn - ing 'bout three bells,
 But be - fore I had a chance to fix de kiv-er,

I'd been hunt - ing me some pul - lets on de sly, My I happened to look, and on de win - dow - pane I saw Dat bag was kind - er hea - vy and my smile was most con-ge - nial, When ve - ry same thing from down de street, and he was grin-ning, I some-thing might - y cu - ri - ous, wid mis-chief passed me by.

 done left de house, 'cause I dont live there no more.

CHORUS.

Now de face of de thing, it was - n't white, 'Cause I seen it plain as day, mp

right out in de light, I know I had - n't had a drop of gin dat night, It must been de ghost of a coon; ----- It looked like de man who lived in a hut be - hind de trees, I think his first name's Eph' - ram 'Cause it starts off wid an E, I owed him ten before he died, so I did - n't stop to see, 'Cause I swear 'twas de ghost of de coon! -----
