Con-duct-or man, wave your hand, Start this train a-
Each flow-er there fills the air— With a scent-ed mov-in' for Dix-ie land. I can't wait, Don't hes-i-tate, Tell that en-gin-eer to set his fragrance and a per-fume rare. Birds and bees— sing in the trees, Ob-li-ga-tos to the dark-y fast-est gait. I can see— Lu-cin-da Lee,— Standing in the door, a-wait-in' there for me.—

mel-o-dies. Dea-con Brown will take us down,— To his cel-e-bra-ted old camp meeting ground.

Down at the sta-tion, there'll be a de-mon-sta-tion Of south-ern hos-pi-tal-i-ty.—
Each sly old geez-er will grab a gal and squeeze her; When they get to shout-ing 'round.—
